

Words & Music of the Old North State

With MARJORIE HUDSON & SUSAN KETCHIN

Marjorie Hudson's stories in her new book ACCIDENTAL BIRDS OF THE CAROLINAS evoke life in fictional Ambler County, a place reminiscent of the small towns, fields, and rivers of rural North Carolina.

Singer/Songwriter
Susan Ketchin, author of THE CHRIST-HAUNTED LANDSCAPE and a forthcoming memoir of music, has taken life in the South and Hudson's stories as inspiration for new songs.

TOGETHER, THEY HAVE CREATED A READING-WITH-SONGS PERFORMANCE THAT WEAVES MUSIC INTO NARRATIVE AND NARRATIVE INTO MUSIC.

Hudson reads selections from her lyrical prose, and Ketchin performs original and traditional music inspired by images in Accidental Birds and the natural music of the Southern landscape and people.

"An extraordinary opportunity to experience life and song of the South through the eyes of two of our deeply treasured artists. Marjorie and Susan illustrate, with humor, vibrant images and the sweet voice of song, experiences we've all had but didn't yet have the words to express."
